Secretary of the Navy Denby, who witnessed the closing features of the winter maneuvers in Cuban waters, was so enthusiastic over what he saw, and of the records of the men behind the guns, that he told the President and invited him to see these great sea fighters and meet Admiral Wilson, under whose directions such wonderful things were accomplished.

One of the features of the Cuban maneuvers was the part airplanea.

CAN HIT ANYTHING.

Box kites made fast to the decks of battleships by ropes were subjected to fire from antiaircraft guns and small arms on board the sea fighters. Nine ships engaged in practice almost simultaneously furnished inspiring evidence that American gunners can hit almost anything whether it flies or floats.

Airplanes also played important parts in scouting expeditions and in battle pressies were able to pick up an "enemy" miles away from the base of the main fleet. Torpedoboat destroyers sent out to sea attempted to evade these aerial scouts, but most of their efforts proved futile.

The story of Jonah and the whale is bunk plus.

LYMPNE (Eng.) April 23.—It is Great Britain's inte ns of the agreement arrived at in Paris last January with regard to what steps should be taken to coerce Germany into meeting her reparations debt. She agrees that failure by Germany to meet her obligations in this respect should be met with further pressure.

This became known at today's meeting between Premiers Briand and Lloyd George, who conferred on the situation arising from Germany's stand on the reparations questions and what is to be done if she continues her recalification. SCHEME HERE

BRIAND EXPLAINS.

M. Briand, at his own request explained to the British Premier at a conference which occupied the best part of this afternoon and evening, the French proposals for setting up an economic administration in part of Westphalia, including the Rhur coal basin, should the Germans fall to pay the reparations due May 1. The proceeds of this administration, such as taxation on coal exports and excess profits duties levied on German industrial establishments, would, under the French plan, be placed in a pool out of which the reparations would be paid the Allies.

Although Lloyd George doubtless was aware of the general character of the French plans from the communications exchanged between the British and French foreign offices, M. Briand expressed the wish the explain personally some of the important features affecting the general policy of the Allies, in order to attain complete unity of purpose.

BOMB SUSPECT IS IDENTIFIED.

TWO SCORE KILLED.

TWO SCORE KILLED.

The Wall street explosion, one of the worst tragedies in the history of New York, occurred at noon on September 18, 1920.

The skyscrapers of lower Mafihatian were pouring out their thousands for the mid-day meal when suddenly a sheet of flame shot up from Wail and Broad streets. In a few seconds nearly two score bodies lay on bloodstained pavements, while more than 100 men and women were torn by flying fragments of metal. In a second millions of dollars worth of damage had been done.

All was confusion, all was mystery. After a time, when hundreds of pelicemen and a detachment of soldiers from Governor's Island arrived to guard sub-treasury and banking houses, the confusion ended.

rived to guard sub-treasury and banking houses, the confusion ended, but the mystery continued.

Countiess investigations were started. A wrecked wagon and dead horse were found outside the banking house of J. P. Morgan and Company, which, by some investigators, was held to be the object of the outrage—if, indeed, outrage it was, and not accident. It was generally accepted that the explosion had occurred in this death cart, whose owner and driver never were found, although expert farriers and wagon makers were called in in efforts to identify horse and vehicle.

Investigators wavered for a time back and forth between theories that a powder wagon accidentally had been sent into the financial district, but after a time it came to be general opinion that the explosion was planned, either to destroy the Morgan offices of Stock Exchange or as a demonstration of radicals to impress the world's street of finance.

ANARCHISTS BLAMED.

Chief Flynn of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice was confident from the first that it was a plot, and in this he was backed by most investigators. Finally the grand fury, which studied the disaster, also returned an opinion that anarchists had been at work.

Tis a wonderful instrument and has no superior in either tone quality or beauty of finish.

DIPLOMATS APPROVE.

WASHINGTON, April 24.— Approval of the course of the American government with respect to the reparations controversy is believed to have been indicated by the Allied diplomats here before the dispatch of Secretary Hughes's reply to the Berlin appeal that President Harding act as mediator and fix the sum Cermany must pay.

Ji became known today that the German request and the American reply were discussed informally by the Secretary of State and the European ambassadors and it is understood that the foreign envoys were apprised of the character of the American reply in the interim between the receipt of the German memorandum and the sending of the response.

State Department officials were awaiting today the answer from Berlin which press dispatches from that city indicated was about to be made after being planed before the Reichsiag. It is expected, however, that whatever proposal is made will be submitted first to the diplomatic representatives here.

Germany's new note to the United States on the reparations question had not arrived in Washington tonight, although press dispatches from Berlin said it was dispatches from Berlin said it was dispatched during the day. Officials at the State Department prior to receipt of the German note refused generally to discuss the reparations question. IBY CABLE AND AS

SIGN OF THE WORLD'S END.

On Making Friends for England.

BY GILBERT K. CHESTERTON. [Copyright, 1921, Chicago Tribune.]

narrowest thing about him. This is not particularly paradoxical; it is, when we come to think of it, quite inevitable. His vision of his own village may really be full of varieties, and even his vision of his own nation probably is smaller than the world. His vision of the universe is certainly much smaller than the universe. Hence he is never so inadequat when he is universal; he is never so limited as when he generalizes.

nodern attempts at a creedless reed, at something variously de-cribed as essential Christianity, or undenomination religion, or a world faith to embrace all the faiths in the world. It is that every sectarian is more sectarian in his unsectari-is more sectarian in his unsectarianism than he is in his sect. The emancipation of a Baptist is a very Baptist emancipation. The charity of a Buddhist is a very Baptist emancipation. The charity of a Buddhist is a very Buddhist charity, and very different from Christian charity. When a philosophy embraces everything, and squeezes it out of shape; when it digests, it necessarily assimilates. When a Theosophist absorbs Christianity it is rather as a cannibal absorbs Christian missionaries. In this sense it is even possible for the larger thing to be swallowed by the smaller and for men to move about not only in a Clapham cosmos under Clapham moon and stars.

But if this danger exists for all men, it exists especially for the Englishman. The Englishman is never so insular as when he is international. In private life he is a good friend and in practical politics often even a good ally. But theoretical politics are more practical than practical politics are more practical than practical politics he Englishman is the worst ally the world ever saw. This is all the more curious because he has passed so much of his histerical pictures and never understood one of them. He has been in twenty great alliances and never understood one of them. He has never been farther away from European politics than when he was fighting heroically in the thick of them.

I myself think that this splendid isolation is sometimes really splendid, so long as it is isolation and does not imagine itself to be imperialism or internationalism. With the idea of being international, with the idea of being international.

mearer the truth than the men who simply assumed those limitations as rational.

The war of the controversionalists was a wider thing than the peace of the arbiters. And in the same the Englishman never cuts a less convincing figure before other nations than when he tries to arbitrate between them.

I have by this time heard a great deal about the necessity of saving Anglo-American friendship, a necessity which I myself feel rather too strongly to be satisfied with the ambassadorial and editorial style of achieving it. The very worst way of securing Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it) to be Anglo-American; or (as the more illiterate would express it). The work would express it is individual.

No man in the world is more missense there is no public life, in that sense there is no public opinion. There have never been any such popular revolutions of the middle ages.

For the English are reviled for their imperialism, which is a reactionalism, which is a reactionalism there is no public diplicant. At any rate, there have never been any such popular revolutions of the middle ages.

The English are a nation of ameter any the devil world which is a recolutionary one.

For the English are reviled for their imperialism because they are not imperialism because they are not imperialism. They dislike it, which is the real reason why they are disliked when they do it. Nobody calls France imperialistic because she has absorbed Brittany. But everybedy calls England imperialistic because she has not absorbed Ireliand.

The English are a nation of amateurs; they are even a nation of excentrics. An Englishmban is never more English than when he is considered an eccentric by the other Englishmen. This can be clearly seen in a figure like Dr. Johnson, who has become national not by being normal, but by being extraordinary.

To express this mysterious people, to explain or suggest why they like tall hedges and heavy breakfasts and crooked roads and small stall and does not consist of these conquered provinces at all. It is not an empire, but an adventure, which is probably a much finer thing. It was not the power of making strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries similar to our own, but simply the pleasure of seeing strange countries of the seed of th because they were different from our.

The adventurer did, indeed, like the third son, set out to seek his fortune, but not primarily to alter other people's fortunes; he wished to trade with people rather than to rule them. But as the other people remained different from him, so did he remain different from them. The adventurer saw a thousand stranger things and remained a stranger. He was the Robinson Crusse on a hundred desert islands, and on each he remained as insular as on his own island.

MAKE 'EM INTERESTING.

What is wanted for the cause of England today is an Englishman with effough imagination to love his country from the outside as well as the inside. That is, we need some-body who will do for the English what has never been done for them, but what is done for any outlandish peasantry or even any savage tribe. We want people who can make England attractive, quite apart from disputes about whether England is strong or weak. We want somebody to explain fiot that England is everywhere, but what England is or is not really dying, but why we do not want her to die.

For this purpose the official and conventional compliments or claims can never get any further than pompous abstractions about law and justice and truth, the ideals which England accepts as every civilized state accepts them and violates as

Nineteen of the twenty-six candidates for the Board of Education appeared before the members of the City Club at the noon luncheon of that organization yesterday and in three-minute speeches told their platforms.

The surprise of the meeting came when C. L. Mr. Shore, who is a leading business man of the city, said: "I aman involuntary candidate, but I believe that a business man can serve the city efficiently on the board, for during the next two years that body will spend $30,000,000 in the administration of the schools of the city and for buying sites and for the construction of new schools. I stand for co-operation between the members of the Board of Education, the City Council, the Board of Supervisors and all citizens in working out a broad, forward-looking policy in the management and development of our school system. There is a magnificent opportunity for service on the board, and it is up to some of us to take the time from our business affairs and to endeavor to the beat of our ability to aid in solving then ext two years."

San Francisco knotted it in the wixth. Crumpler opened with a single, and was forced by Fitzgerald. Fitz took second when Rath grounded to Hyatt. TERN 'EM BACK.

Perfect defensive work furned Vernon back in the sixth. Crumpler warmed up in this inning by walking Chadbourne. Chadbourne was forced when Kamm hauled High's tall bounder out of the air and threw the ball with his right hand over his left shoulder to second. Schneider doubled past Rath, putting High on third, and a pass to Hyatt stocked the sacks with potential bacon. Smith drove to Rath. Morris, timing the play to a nicety, didn't wait for Ellison to cover second. Instead, he hopped over to that bag himself, and then doubled Smith at first.

Mr. Bell said he had decided to take the matter up with the State Department because he felt interna-tional unfriendliness was being de-veloped by the methods of the immi-gration official with whom he had had the encounter. It is likely he will make a complaint to the De-partment of Labor also.

SECRETARY IS CANADIAN.

CAUSES FRICTION. CAUSES FRICTION.

Dr. Bell said he had been told by many Canadians that the actions of the American inspector were helping to create an unfriendly feeling on the border and that he thought the State Department should know this. Miss MacKenzie's difficulty, he said, grew out of an encounter with the inspector last September when he threatened to "get her" if she came back.

threatened to "get her" if she came back.

On that occasion, it was explained. Miss Mackensie and her mother were on their way to Boston, where the former expected to take a steamer for Europe. The inspector demanded a head tax from each of them, as "alien immigrants." Mrs. Mackensie protested the classification, explaining she was coming to the United States to visit friends for the United States, the same intering the country as a wage earner. The officer, it is charged, became impertinent and threatened to out her off the train. She then paid the tax.

Business and Professional Men and Women Interested

Fourteen Hundred Orders Received

Two weeks ago, a page announcement e or pass this gas causes it to regarding Berry's Anatomical Method was published in the Sunday Times. The Method offered a permanent cure for constipation to everyone-men, women and children. Since then, no less than fourteen hundred orders have been received, coming from housewives, book-keepers, stenographers, store and office clerks, managers, executives, nurses, realty dealers, musicians, lawyers and bankers, and persons in other sedentary professions.

> This prompt response to the announcement is conclusive evidence that the public today realizes that drugs and artificial means give but temporary relief. They also seem to realize that only by doing something which will renew the life and vigor of the colon muscles, can they become natural and regular in the all-important duty of bowel evacuations. After all, however, everyone should be fully conscious that it takes muscular power to eliminate waste matter and if the colon muscles are not fully nourished by the blood circulating through them, they cannot hope to be natural and regular any more than they could expect to have the full use and power of their arm muscles if the blood in their arm was congested for any length of time.

> There is a small difference between the right and the wrong way to do a thing. The Berry Method is the right and at the same time, the only way to renew the life and vigor of the colon muscles and prevent gas accumulation in the bowels.

> For five dollars, the price of two osteopathic or massage treatments, or a few bottles of drugs, a permanent cure has been put into their hands. There is no need to hesitate—send for the method today.

The east side branches supply the means for Americanization work with librarians specially skilled in dealing with foreign-born. These branches take on the characteristics of community centers.

There also are many seekers for knowledge that have no connection with any institution; young men and many not young that seek to perfect themselves for trades or business life. As a result he got a job paying him $12 a day.

Friends of the library feel there is still another important argument in favor of a library building of good appearance and, at least, ample room for the present equipment. This is the precitige it would give the city, which fast is becoming recognized as an educational

A constitutional amendment will go before the people which provides that bills passed by both houses of the Legislature will become laws unless vetoed by the Goverror. At present the Governor must approve before they can become laws. The new procedure would not make a vast difterence in affixing responsibility, but it would deprive the Governor of some of the classures of the pecket veto which accomany the closing of a legislative session. REVERSING THE PROCESS

The State Assembly approves a constitutional amendment which would make sessions of the Legislature annual instead of hiemail. Here the taxpayer should arise and make a roar that would rock the capital. If the Assemblymen are to have twice as many opportunities for spending money as they do now we want to know it, and we want to protest. If the Legislature would only meet every four or eight years it would be a great improvement. To meet every year, when the new ideas for spending money are fresh, would be a tragedy to the taxpayer. Won't the committee or somebody sidetrack this amendment and save the face of the people? Why should the Assembly wish to meet every season?

According to testimony in the sivorce se Millionaire Stokes was so much interted in chickens that he kept a small-sized unitry farm in his splendid apartments in a paintial New York hotel. At one time had more than fifty hens thus placed, he chickens usually found in the swell stellies of New York are not Rhode is all Rades but Broadway Pinks and they and Reds but Broadway Pinks and they hed their feathers on retiring. Few poople would dream of using an apartment which would rent for $100 a day merely for the entertainment of a herd of humble hens. Think of keeping a floog at the Ambassador or Alexandria to accommodate a flock of Peking ducks! But when a millionaire once takes an interest in chickens here is no telling where his passion will carry him.

MUCH DIVIDED.

Maif a dosen high-priced alienists were paid $100 each a day as witnesses in the Carl Wanderer murder trial in which the plea of insanity was raised by the defense. After the evidence had concluded the judge called the experts to him separately and asked each to define a moron. The answers were about as varied as they could well be. To one a moron was an arch-imbecile whose intelligence was blunted on its moral and emotional side alone. Another described a muron as a clod with a dwarfed intellect of a 7-year-old. None of the experts indicated a hundred dollars' worth of ability in their own research, but they got the money just the same. Naturally, they split even. The experts for the defense were all sure the defendant was insane, while those for the prosecution were equally as certain that he was sane and shrewd.

Too MUCH FREEDOM.

Efforts were made in Congress to amend the immigration bill to permit the indiscriminate welcome of political refugees from all nations of the earth. America's reputation for being the land of the free is something hard to live down. The line to that effect in the national anthem has swelled the breasts of many patriots, but it has also done a world of harm. The criminal classes, the scum and the outcasts it has also done a world of harm. The criminal classes, the scum and the outcasts of earth are the ones who quote it most and claim its service as a cloak. A wild man from Russia may stand in the streets of Washington and hurl a bomb at the Capitol. He has been told that this is the land of the free and that free speech and direct action are his portion. America has a warm feeling for all peoples who are struggling for the liberty of higher civilization, but it has no welcome for those who war against society and all government. It is no dumping ground for the cesspools of Europe.

ESS GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS." President Harding's slogan, "Less government in business," points the way to one of the most necessary reforms of the present era. The experiences of Russia and Great Britain prove alike the danger to constitutional government in accustom-ing the people of a country to seek political remedies for industrial ills. There are cy-cles of good times and of had times. Business depressions are contagious. They sweep over national boundaries and are as often due to climatic as to political causes.

Experience has proved that bad government or absence of government can bring misery to a people in an incredibly short time, but the foundations of prosperity are grounded in industry and not in political codes. Governments can easily destroy the public credit; but the present state of for-eign exchange proves how difficult, if not impossible, it is for them to establish it. Just now the railroads in the United States are in a bad way and are appe to the government for assistance. But the only aid the government can give to them is to withdraw from the transportation busi-ness. The railroads are not asking for govness. The railroads are not asking for government subsidies. What they desire is the rapeal of the restrictive legislation by which the government interferes with the operation and management of the railroads. It the law limiting the profits of the railroads were to be wiped off the statute books—if the roads were given as much of a chance to make winnings as losses—capital would instantly become available for a resumption of railroad building on the scumption that did as much to develop the country as that did so much to develop the country generation ago.

Had the present limitation been placed on the profits which successful railroad promoters and builders might make at the end of the Civil War it is not probable that a single transcentinental line would have yet been builded. The only favor the railroads been builded. The only favor the railroads are asking of the government is to get off

There is just one law favorable to Amer ican industry that Congress can pass, that is a protective tariff act to guard American labor and industry from cheap foreign competition. All attempts at governmental interference with production and distribution nside the country have served to limit the supply of necessities, drive capital into hid-supply of necessities, drive capital into hid-ing and increase prices to the consumer.

Seeking to advance business by political methods is only a repetition of the old folly of trying to create something out of noth-ing. This faise policy has been calried much farther in Europe than in our own country, and it accounts in part for some of the surprising requests made by overseas commissions of the government at Wash-ington. Even our late allies keep asking for advances of money from the American government to stimulate industries in those countries. They fall to get the American idea that governments should not engage in the money-lending business. Taxation is the only source of revenue for our governthe only source of revenue for our govern-ment; and it was never the intent of the framers of the Constitution that the gov-ernment they created should make use of

United States have extended more than $5,000,000,000 in credits to the industries of Europe. But it has not been compulsory aid, and the credits are established on a business basis. For the American government in time of peace to tax its people to raise funds to lend to other governments would be to follow a policy both unwise and nn-American.

Congress has been fairly inundated with bills having for their end the passage of laws that will favor some industrial group, either of capitalists or workmen. The folthe Saturday Evening Post depicts graphic once it is introduced:

It is immediately referred to a committee. What kind of committee? Well, you have on that committee a farmer, and you have a blacksmith, you have a barber, you have a couple of professional politicians. They take that bill out into their committee room and they begin to paw it over. The farmer reads it over to see just what there might be in it for the farmer. If he does not find anything in it he begins to reason: "What can I put in it that will interest the farmer and send me back to the Legislature?"

The blacksmith gets hold of it and he begins to think gets hold of it and he begins to think of union labor: "is there anything in there that will help union labor?" If not he begins to think what he can put in it that will help union labor. Then the barber gets hold of it and he shaves a little something off, and when they get through the two of it and he shaves a little something off, and when they get through the two professional politicians look it over to see what the other fellow has missed; and they either take out or put in whatever is necessary, from a political standpoint; and when the bill comes back on the floor its parent wouldn't recognize it, and thereafter the business which originally demanded legislation spends its energy trying to kill the thing because it hampers business. That has been the history of direct lesislation for business ever since it began.

on for business ever since it began This is but a repetition of what has been taking place for the last three months at Sagramento and of what has taken place at every session during the last ten years. Inevery spession during the last ten years. In-terference of the State government in pri-vate business has given the impetus for the creation of the present hundred-odd State boards and commissions. The only legisla-tion which could really help would be the repeal of nine-tenths of the laws relating to regulation or control of private business new on the statute books and to abolish shows all those commissions.

The Evening Post sums up the situation conclusively when it observes that: "Wheth conclusively when it observes that: "Wheth-er we like ft or not, we must come back to the old starting point, that the people must, for the most part, help themselves, and that a considerable part of the 'enlightened' leg-istation they are always asking for proves to possess the quality so commonly associ-ated with lifting oneself by one's boot tries confirm the view that the Harding adninistration achieved a notable dip victory when it finally negotiated the three Treaty. Three things are schieved: amicable relations between the government of the United States and that of Colombia have been restored, after having been dis-rupted since 1905; Colombia formally recognizes the independence of the republic of Panama and thus relinquishes all claim to title to the Canal Zone; an entente cordiale ned which cannot fail to have a beneficial effect on our trade with the re-publics lying to the south of us.

Enemies of the administration sought Enemies of the administration sought to mask their attacks in the shadow of the greatness of Theodore Roosevelt. They repeated his opposition to the treaty that Bryan sought to negotiate and set up the indefensible claim that it applied equally to the present treaty. Senator Lodge spiked their guns effectively when he read in the Senate an extract from a letter by Roosevelt to Senator Fall in which he ex-Roosevelt to Senator Fall in which he expressed the hope that a treaty along the lines of the one now ratified should shortly be negotisted. Roosevelt then wrote:

I greatly liked your statement about the Colombian Treaty, it is very strong. I, of course, most carnestly hope that your negotiations for a new and stronger treaty will be successful. I feel exactly as you do about the type of treaty that we should have with these Latin-American countries. Root takes substantially your view. You keep in touch with Lodge and Kellogg, do you not? If some such treaty as you suggest could be negotiated it would be a capital thing.

After mentioning his objections to the treaty which had then been sent to the Senate—this was in March, 1917—Mr. Roosevelt concluded: "I would have much preferred some kind of treaty that was good enough to warrant our supporting it— as would eminently be the case if your suggestions were adopted."

Senator Fall's suggestions were adopted in the drafting of the new Colombian Treaty. That Roosevelt himself was desir-ous of effecting an amicable settlement with Colombia is fully proven by the fact that, shortly before he retired from office, he sent to the Senate a proposed treaty be-tween this country and Colombia. In that treaty provision was made for paying s monetary consideration to Colombia on condition that she would give recognition to oftion that she would give recognition to the independence of Panama. That treaty was ratified by the Senata, but was rejected by the Colombian upper house.

Senator Lodge read also the following extract from a communication which he had received from Mr. Root in relation to the Colombian Treaty:

As the result of much discussion, including that which you recall in your letter, I came to a very definite personal opinion about the relations which ought to exist. This was, of course, talked over with President Roosevelt, and we were in entire agreement about it. The opinion was that the successful Panama revolution produced what John Quincy Adams used to talk about as a "partition of empire," and that under our Adams used to talk about as a "parti-tion of empire," and that under our guaranty of the independence of Pana-ma there were two special things which ought to be brought about—one, the settlement of Panama's share of the public debt of Colombia, and the other the recognition of Panama by Colom-bia, so that the state of inchoate war, which had continued ever since Novemwhich had continued ever since November, 1903, would be ended and the title of Panama would be free from cloud. It seems to me that we could be very liberal with Colombia in settling these

Senator Knox pointed out that Colombia commands the southern approaches to the canal on both the Atlantic and the Pacific sides and emphasized the necessity, for the safety of the canal, of having control over those approaches through an arrangemen with Colombia. In this connection Senato Lodge also said: "The matter of easter and southern approaches to the canal, whether by sea or land, gives a great value to the establishment of good relations and

Senator Lodge said frankly that the n ey payment, to which this country agrees, seems to him too large, if measured by the exact obligations of Panama to Colombia; but, when measured by the protection to and security for the canal, it was not extravagant. He used the apt illustration of the purchase by this country of the Virgin Islands from Denmark. Mr. Hay offered $5,000,000 for those islands in 1902 and the offer was defeated by a single vote in the Danish Parliament. But in 1917 we raised our bid to $25,000,000 and it was accepted. Senator Lodge said that $5,000,000 is as much as the islands are intrinsically worth, but that the political purpose of the pur-chase, as a protection of the main route of commerce to the canal, far outweighed the value of the islands themselves. Negotiating the Colombian Treaty was unt to clearing a cloud from the title held by this country to the Canal Zone. The strip belonged originally to Colombia. Until Colombia signed a relinquishment the title was not clear. Colombia had never recognized the independence of Panama. When she sent troops into the province of Panama at the time of the revolution in Panama at the time of the revolution in 1903 the United States intervened in the interests of peace and compelled their with-drawal. Things remained in that state the til the present treaty was ratified by the

Our title to the Canal Zone is now with out a flaw, and cordial relations have been re-established with Colombia. Considert the worth of the canal, both commercially and for the national defense. The Times agrees with President Harding and the Re-publican majority in the Senate that the price paid is not extravagant.

TAIL AND JOYS.

J Complaint has been made that a Missouri Sheriff spends all his time playing seven-up and going hunting and fishing with his prisoners. Jail life is so popular that criminals are envied and inmates shed tears of regret when their terms expire. They are apt to indulge in assault, larceny or other misdemeanors in order to return to their jail lodgings. This is not well for the communities. Our prisons may be rea-sonably comfortable, but must not be made garden or the merry-go-round.

JNIONS IN COURT.

Now the unions are seeking to get a return decision in their favor at the hands return decision in their favor at the hands of the courts. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers bring an action in New York against the Clothing Manufacturers' Association demanding $1,000,000 damages and also seeking an injunction restraining the manufacturers from indulging any antiunion activities. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers called a strike some five months ago and as a result 65,000 workers are out of employment. Some of them joined another union which had no quarrel with the manufacturers and went back to work. another union which had no quarrel with the manufacturers and went back to work, but the manufacturers have refused to make any new contracts with the amalgamated—that union having already broken the former one. Now the amalgamated goes into court for legal damages on account of the strike called by its own officers. It is a unique proceeding, but will be welcomed by citizens. Heretofore it has been almost impossible to get a union into court. The unions would never incorporate and when effort was made to find somebody really responsible it would prove a fruitiess case. If the unions will come into court and identity themselves they will find something to their advantage—although perhaps not to their advantage—although perhaps not to the satisfaction of the walking delegates

PASSING OF A CRISIS.

PASSING OF A CRISIS.

Never in the history of big business has there been so little boat rocking as during the crisis through which commercial, industrial and financial America is now passing. The passengers, for the most part, have followed The Times' advice and remained seated with their gaze fixed straight ahead. The few fools who attempted to change seats were promptly swept or knocked overboard, and the craft is being deftly steered through dangerous shoals and rapids into clearer waters now shoals and rapids into clearer waters now

If this attitude can be maintained for few more weeks the danger point will have that the period from which this country is now emerging has been fraught with grave possibilities, but wise application of lessons in poise hardly learned, backed by a bank-ing system which has stood as firm as Gib-raltar's rock, will pull us through.

From the manufacturing centers of the East are coming daily reports of renewed production; of re-employment of idle hands at readjusted wage scales; of reduced commedity and food prices; of liquidation and of samer outlook. That there will be no or sener outcook. That there will be no crash, no bread lines and no business cata-clysm is now well enough assured to be made in the form of a statement of fact if the opinion of trained observers is to be

There is reason to think that labor is not altogether insensible to the overseas rum-blings and that a well-balanced proportion is coming to understand that their pay en-velopes are not filled by the boss, but that their wages come through their employers their wages come through their employers and not from them.

In Los Angeles and vicinity we have not been as close to the pit as our cousins in the eastern and middle western centers of population. Our people have been able to spread their extra war earnings over the depression and, although the spread has been their for places there has been little.

depression and, although the spread has been thin in places, there has been little actual suffering in Southern California.

It is true that our lemons are a drug on the market because the free-traders all but demolished the protecting wall. It is true that our cotton is piled up in warehouses instead of going forward to the loom, but bur oranges and our walnuts and our prunes and our raisins and the thousand and one products of our soil found a ready market. Our bank clearings grew out of all proportion to the rest of the country and our foreign trade is showing steady gains that promise to place Los Angeles in a commanding position so far as world markets

While other cities practically suspended, for climatic or financial reasons, their building programs, Los Angeles has made new records, and this in the face of credit diffi-culties, for the banks have not taken kindly to building loans, on the theory that high costs would absorb the margin of safety. It is an interesting commentary on the faith of the city builders that they have gone ahead on their own capital or upon funds raised outside of ordinary channels to greater achieve ments than ever.

Fruit growers have received a facing blow in the heavy damage cansed by late frosts, and the cotton and copper situation is still about as bad as it could be; but after discounting each of these adverse factors and making every other reasonable allowance The Times finds that the weight of carefully balanced and well-adjudicated evilence indicates a further treading of the pathway towards well-ground ed business stability which will keep outhern California in the vanguard

CHAMP CLARK'S PRAYER

The day Champ Clark's death was announced in the papers two Car-rollton citizens met in a lunch room and one of them, who was for some and one of them, who was for some years a traveling salesman, told the other the story of a personal meeting with the great Missourian and a touching incident of that meeting, revealing a beautiful trait in Champ Clark's character that possibly few even of his close, personal friends ever had a glimpse of.

"It happened at a hotel in Fort Madison, lowa," said the former traveling man. "It was the one hotel in many States where I traveled where the manager was a personal chum of mine. Every hotel in the town was full to the limit, but I had secured a room. While I was chatting with the manager, Champ Clark, on his way to make a speech on some branch line and having to stay all night in Fort Madison, stepped up to the desk and asked for a room. There was mone to be had. I heard a whispered consultation with the manager proposing to take a blanket and the floor and let Mr. Clark have my bed. The manager introduced my bed. The manager introduced me. Mr. Clark wouldn't hear to my suggestion, but said he would accept a one-half share in the bed. It was

The thing of living in the country is great.

First, all you need is a place to live in; and then a horse and a cow and some pigs and chickens.

Then, all you need is some feed for the horse and cow and pigs and chickens, and a strong man—

But that's next; a strong man to feed them.

Then you need to read all the farmer books and government bulletins and learn just how things should be done.

Then you need the nerve to go and tell your man how to do everything, and the courage to watch him do it another way and ignore your instruc-After that, all you need is the gall to pretend that you did it, when a bean comes up the way it was in-tended.

But with all that, it's the life; and a fellow could stand it if it wasn't for the mortgage and paying the man and buying the feed.—[Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Wild deer are frequently seen around here, causing a certain amount of uneasiness to timid mothers as to the safety of their children. "You must be technically punished, you beautiful darling, for my reputation's sake, but your punishment shall be made as sensationally delightful as possible. I myself will bring you roses with the morning daw upon them. Your friends shall serenade you with sweet music, your cell shall be transformed into an exquisite boudoir. Expert close shall prepare your angel food. I shall prove to you, you aweet thing, that punishment at my hands is a priceless asset. You shall live to bless the day on which you fouted the laws of this fair county. When the offender is prominent enough, beautiful enough, charming enough—justice is ever tempered with luxurious mercy."

We had rather hoped that the scenarioists were straining a point for the exigencies of their plots when they portrayed presumably well-hed folk as reading anybody's letters they happened to find lying around, as eavesdropping behind curtains and peeping through windows and generally behaving as though there were no such thing as honorable principles and a standard of social ethics. But the evidence given in the two celebrated divorce cases. Stokes and Stillman, would imply that the film stories are not so much overdrawn, after all. In both cases people of presumably decent social standing stand willing to admit masty little spying incidents in which they are pleased to imply that they were pleased to imply that they were priorming a necessary dity. And they were always prepared to put the worst possible construction upon anything they saw or overheard.

Nevertheless, the old social ethics still hold good. Personal honor is

Nevertheless, the old social ethical thin hold good. Personal honor till comme il faut, and nasty cursity is still contemptible.

Every so often this moldy old "immorality-in-the-high-schools" scandal is trotted out by prurient-minded sensation-seekers, who have been told by somebody who positively knew somebody who had been assured by somebody who had been assured by somebody oles that conditions were, etc., etc.

But now we have a prominent pastor publicly exploiting it from the pulpit on the authority of "a high-school teacher in Los Angelea" whom, however, he does not feel at liberty to name. That high-school teacher must apparently be protected, no matter how many girls and boys suffer under a disgusting imputation. Yet surely any high-school teacher with irrefutable definite evidence should have personally brought the matter before the school board in good faith and, if proven, it could have been dealt with silently, decently, cautiously, humanely, seeing to it that only the culprits, if any, suffered. The sensational method is the disgusting method, cruelly bringing disrepute upon thousands of innocent children, pandering only to the prurient minds and creating unwarranted anxiety and suspicion in the hearts of thousands of parents.

"Approximately 60 per cent of the "Approximately 60 per cent of the people are below the normal intelli-gence," says Dr. Henry Viets of the National Committee of Mental Hy-

National Committee of Mental Hygiene.

Pardon, doctor, but is it not perhaps that "normal" is therefore 66 por cent? What can "normal" be if it is not the best average majority?
Rather would we say that 40 per cent are above normal—which may not necessarily be flattering the 40 per cent, of course, but it sounds so much more encouraging.

More internal reform. The Daughters of the American Revolution have resoluted to personally increase the birth rate, offering a special decoration to every daughter with four children. Time was when the daughters, in their Americanization camters, in their Americanization campaign, lavished their interest chiefly upon other people's children for whom they had many and diverse schemes for improved upbringing.

One observes that every daughter's fourth child is to be the special care of the entire D.A.R. Just how many thousand godmethers the mighty atoms will thus acquire is rather alarming to contemplate. A good deal depends upon what that "special care", entails. Most godmothers prove more popular via absent treatment and a nice memory for birthdays and Christmas.

The matron of the Pacific Coast Rescue and Protection Society of Portland declined an invitation for the girls in that institution to attend a theater performance.

"Our home is a Christian institu-tion and we no not sanction theater-going or worldly amusements, realiz-ing that the two cannot go together."

What an appalling realization in a world bright with delightful worldly amusements! One wonders just how the institution arrived at that "realization" and what manner of Christians they are turning out. Dear heaven, what grim gloom is scattered in thy name!

One learns from the reports of the women's clubs convention at Pomena that every club had a good report to give of itself. That is comforting. All the same, it would provide an interesting variation if just one club now and then would turn in a poor report of its activities. It would seem so much more human.

Sir Reginald Blomfield, R.A., is concerned about the ugly architecture of the saloons in London. He has suggested that a prize of $1500 be offered to architects for designing more artistic saloon fronts. So, you see, they are not really contemplating following the United States' valuable example in prohibition, but only refining the liquor business by injecting more art. Now if they inset upon drinks being imbled to classical music as well, these more subtle refining influences may prove at least as elevating as our own more drastic methods. more drastic methods.

The present institution was organized in 1902 by Mr. J. O. Smith, the Secretary and General Manager. The President, Mr. A. Otis Birch, became actively interested in the business nine years ago and in cooperation with Mr. Smith helped to build the institution to its present magnitude.

The standards of integrity which have been the foundadation of this business success during twenty years will be adhered to without deviation.

This firm recognizes that the tremendous power and value of its good will has grown out of service rendered and values given in merchandise. Its obligation to its thousands of friends is gladly acknowledged. This firm pledges that now and throughout the future that all transactions will represent the greatest value of worthy home furnishings that money can purchase and that it will continue striving for a higher expression of its ideals of service.

"Our Responsibility Never Ceases."

The Birch-Smith Furniture Co. owns its specially designed building on Hill Street between Seventh and Eighth Streets, where the whole of the six commodious floors are devoted to the display of merchandise. # The Program of 1921 Is the Pledge of 1900

Most miles per dollar is the pledge of service on which the structure of the Firestone Organization was reared.

It is beyond any fluctuating policy and is bigger than any program.

This explains the rally of new dealers everywhere to the Firestone standard. They who have weathered the recent difficult period are determined to play safe in the future. They are wide awake to the value in Firestone stability.

They want the Firestone strength behind them.

They know that the pledge of most miles per dollar is much more than a slogan—it is a guiding principle which has enabled the Firestone Organization to grow steadily and surely; to accumulate the fund of resources which is a tower of strength in time of trouble.

Most miles per dollar outlasts temporary business changes and means more than a sale of miles—it means friends for the Firestone representative it makes him a dealer in security.

Ideals are not created full-grown. Seldom are they realized to their fullest extent. Ordinarily they are unattainable. Because as we grow toward an ideal, or perfect our services toward a standard of excellence, that ultimate object of attainment, like the desert mirage, beckoning us with an increased power of altraction, is still just as far away. As we have grown toward the ideal the greater knowledge secured and the broader vision attained, has unconsciously raised the standard of the ideal toward which we are working.

It is fortunate that such is the case. For if the standards of excellence did not improve and ideals did not grow in quality we would soon reach a plane of perfection which would be fatal to industry, ambition and

WOULD FINANCE COAST BUSINESS.

Backing for Development of Industries is Urged.

West Should Furnish Capital, Says Bank Body Head.

Foreign Trade Corporation is Indorsed by McCargar.

BY J. B. McCARGAR.

California bankers are brought face to face with the fact that from now on the Pacific Coast must develop, not only a foreign market for our present surplus production, but must prepare for the setting up in the West of those industries which will turn our own raw products into manufactured goods for export abroad—this if Pacific trade is to be handled through Pacific ports instead of through the Panama Canal. The California Bureau of Economics is right in its contention that if we ourselves do not build up our own industries, the trade of the Pacific will pass us by and ships from the Pacific will dock in eastern seaports where short rail haul can be had to present manufacturing plants.

For this reason, the California State bankers' convention, to be held next month, will be called upon to consider the part which the bankers of the State will play in setting up the new $100,000,000 Foreign Trade Financing Corporation, and also the support which must be given to the building up of our own basic industries and public utilities.

Particular attention will be given to the development of the $100,000.000 Foreign Trade Financing Corporation, which is being set up under the Edge Act to do for America's foreign business a work somewhat similiar to that done by the Federal Reserve banks for business within the United States.

Closely linked with the financing of this corporation must be the furnishing of western money to western industry, in order that we on the Pacific Coast can ourselves furnish the goods required, not only for our overseas trade, but also for pur increasing population.

All realize that the problems of transportation and power are of paramount importance.

VALUE ESTABLISHED.

Year by year, the California State now on the Pacific Coast must de-velop, not only a foreign market for

VALUE ESTABLISHED.

Year by year, the California State Railroad Commission has built up more and more complete inventories covering the physical properties of the various utility companies of the State, until the value of those properties is pretty well established. The logical result is that there will be less and less friction between the utility companies of California and the people, and less and less opportunity for public irritation over utility rates—this because the people, the commission, and the public are coming to a better mutual understanding.

With the return to normal conditions within the State, and with the present rate fixing flurry, due to war readjustment, coming to an end, and with our better understanding of the necessities of the State itself along development lines, and with the spread of the knowledge that the West must build up the West with western money in its own interest, bankers of California are more and more called upon to suggest to their depositors the safety and desirability of investment in California public utility securities. VALUE ESTABLISHED.

INTEREST DEVELOPED.

This, in turn, is developing a community of interest between the security - holding and rate - paying public on the one hand, and the utility companies on the other. The whole State realizes that on the development of hydroelectric power, for instance, depends the future industrial prosperity of California, and also realizes that investments under Railroad Commission control are affe, and, with increasing business assured, also attractive.

What is really happening is that there is growing up a feeling of a partnership through investment, between the rate payers of the State and the utility companies. There is not a power company in California that is not offering its stock and its bonds, not only to the banks and trust companies, but also to the patrons of the various companies direct. In fact an almost INTEREST DEVELOPED.

the patrons of the various com-panies direct. In fact, an almost door-to-door canvass is being made by the hydroelectric companies in selling their securities to the peo-pla.

selling their securities to the people.

This movement is doing more for the development of California than any action yet taken, and it is my belief that at the coming bankers' convention steps will be taken to aid materially, in the carrying out of this work not in the interest of the power companies, not in the interest of any particular class of investors, but in the interest of production with California and in the interest of our future Pacific trade.

MUET FIND CAPITAL

MUST FIND CAPITAL.

We can set up all the machinery for overseas financing that we desire, but in the end we cannot benefit unless we have goods to sell. We cannot have goods to sell unless they are produced. We cannot produce goods unless we have the economic necessities for that production.

We cannot have necessities unless we can obtain or furnish the money needed to construct them, and we cannot obtain or furnish that money if we do not make possible through a liberal policy of encouragement, the obtaining of money by the utilities on the most advantageous terms. MUST FIND CAPITAL

He knows what it is to seek his bed weary and harassed by a million cares and to wake up in the morning with every cell in his body tingling with new life—the problems of the day before annihilated by a night's perfect rest.

He Has Affiliated Himself With THE SUPREME PARTNERSHIP PROMOTING SLEEP: A BARK-ER BROS.' OWN-MAKE MATTRESS and BOX SPRINGS and a SIMMONS METAL BED

If you insist upon seeing the contents of the mattress you expect to buy, you will understand why Barker make their own mattresses.

In spite of the unusual qualities of Barker Bros.' Mattresses, they are not expensive; indeed, their reasonable prices will surprise you.

who wants to hear an "inside" stary of the United States' part in the Peace Conference, and for everyone who is interested in the future course of world history, there will be interest in former-Secretary Lansing's recently published book "THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS" The book should be greeted with great enthusiasm. As Secretary of State during the war, and as one of the five American representatives sent to the Peace Conference, Mr. Lansing is in a position to give an accurate account of what happened at Paris. Not only does he do this admirably, but adds to a valuable historical document, illustrated with primary-source material, the vividity-written story of his personal relations with President Wilson, up to their final dramatic break.

Consider This About Taffeta Dresses

There is no kind of a dress which can be worn more places than a Taffeta can.

They are as good in the evening at in-formal gatherings as they are in the merning.

If you go to a matinee, they are good there. Likewise when you drop in at a friend's house to call. They are worn to church, to little dances; to card parties and when shopping.

They can be worn on cool days with a cape or coat; on warmer days without

Once a woman gets in a taffeta dress, it's hard to get her out.

Little women and large women wear them equally well. We have taffeta dresses that make large women look Misses like them, especially those with the ruffled skirts and little frills.

Taffeta dresses don't go out of style easily. You can wear them till they are ragged, which isn't so easy to do with the material in Paris Store dresses.

Many women have three or four taf-feta dresses at a time. They like them so well.

Taffeta dresses are good spring, summer, winter, fall.

At the prices in this advertisement you can have two taffeta dresses for almost the price of one.

Paris Store taffeta dresses come in four shades of blue; navy, azure. Copenha-gen and the new Harding blue. And in four shades of brown; tobacco,

Ethel Terry Plays Wicked Role in "Heartbalm."

But That's Only Because She's Good Actress.

What She Legrned About Details from Belasco.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

When a young man meets a lady ho is reputed to have made a numgreen paper, it behooves him to be careful. At any rate, that's what the young man should think, but sometimes his spirit of adventure gets the better of him. Perhaps mine did, I don't know—but of this much I am certain, that when I met Ethel Gray Terry, the adventures of "Heartbaim" the other day, it was without a qualm.

Considering the fact that she had vamped men for millions only a few months ago. I found her a most genial person. Well, as a matter of fact, she'd have to be that to do what she did. If she'd been rough about it, she'd have had to do all her vamping with a club, and that's not sportsmanlike. For it's much easier to knock 'em out than drag 'em in.

easier to knock 'em out than drag om in.

I don't know who got the "heartbalm"—but I don't think that Miss Terry did, because as far as I can see, she's still a good hard-working actress, without any signs of having a treasure trove stowed away. But if anybody's worried about that "heartbalm," maybe the Mack Sennett romantic comedy, which is soon to show here, has the answer. I'll have to see it before I'll believe that such a nice young lady as Miss Terry did all she was supposed to have

BALZAC STORY

Balzac is to be the next au Balzac is to be the next author interpreted for the screen by Rex Ingram and June Mathis, respectively the director and scenario writer of the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." And the adaptation is to be titled "The Conquering Pour." Members of the cast for the picture, have already been selected as follows: Alice Terry, Rudolph Valentino, Edward Connelly, Bridgetta Clark, Cleo Madi-Bridgetta Clark, Cleo Madi-son, Noble Johnson and Mark done even in that picture. Still I believe she sot away with the acting of it in-great shape, for she's grown up in the atmosphere of talent and had a remarkable lot of experience. You'd know almost as soon as you'd seen the name Ethel Gray Terry that it must have something to do with the stage. There are Terrys galore in the dramatic Who's Who, according to my recollection, including as the shining light the famous Eilen. Ethel Gray isn't related in any way to these, because her own name is different.

She wanted to call herself Ethel Yndia at one time, but her mother wouldn't stand for it. She told her daughter she wanted her to get a lot further than the chorus.

You see, Miss Terry's mother knew what a name meant, because she herself was a trouper, going by the name of Idlian Lawrence.

knew what a name meant, because she herself was a trouper, going by the name of Lillian Lawrence (perhaps you remember her) and she gave her daughter the title she now bears.

Of course, as soon as people see "Heartbalm" they'll put Miss Terry down as a vamp, even though she's not actually the one at fault in the villainy. There are a couple of bad men who egg her on to worry capitalists out of their coin. She might be capsidered a vamp type, of course, because her hala is dark, and she photographs perhaps something like a Pola Negri. But until she appeared in "Heartbalm" she was generally cast in society, roles, and now at Selig's she's playing the heroine in two-reclers, and probably will assume the leading part in "The Rosary," which doesn't sound at all like wrecking homes.

Mind you, that role in "Heart-balm" needed a versatile touch. At least, she told me she had a great variety of things to do.

Living Room, Dining and Breakfast Room Furniture Made by a Nationally Known Los Angeles Firm With Which We Transact Large Business Annually and Which Sends Its Furniture to the Most Exclusive Furniture Houses in the East!

Their entire stock is what we have to sell! In the adjustment/of business they wished to dispose of their entire stock and we arranged to take it over—a gigantic move!

It Seemed Advisable, If Possible, For Them To Find An Immediate Outlet-We Thought The People Of Southern California Were Ready For Just Such a Sale And Accordingly Opened Negotiations

But they were negotiations out of the ordinary! We were willing to co-operate with the manufacturer in an unusual way—namely, that we would place his stock on sale at COST OF MANUFACTURE, and give the purchasing public the benefit.

Agreed! And the sale begins tomorrow, Monday, morning. You can not overestimate its importance. You would have to be a furniture dealer to buy this furniture at this price in any other way.

Every Piece Is Perfect-Every Piece Is Sold With The Same Ironclad Guarantee That Goes With Every Piece Of Furniture Hamburger's Sells—That of Absolute Worth and Satisfaction

We believe the time is ripe for just such a sale. High prices have delayed the purchase of needed furniture in the lives of many people. This sale will serve a double purpose—it will relieve the manufacturer of his stock, it will give the people of Southern California an opportunity to buy at CURRENT WHOLESALE PRICES, high quality furniture of a very desirable type.

We believe this to be the largest transaction ever made by a local firm in this line—to place $100,000 worth of furniture on sale in addition to our already extensive stocks, but—

In a sale of this kind, detail is impossible, but we may briefly state generalities as follows:

She's a very genuine young woman to meet, is Miss Eddy—straightforward, frank, scorning pretense of possessing more than she has. She doesn't do her own laundry and then come in and pretend it's her maid's day out. If she does any laundry—I don't think she does, but if she does—I'm sure if you'd catch her at it she'd cheerfully hold a discussion with you as to whether borax crystals or Keep Klean Soap is the best thing to use, and she'd probably know more about it than you do, too.

But she's pretty much shut up within herself a good deal of the time, declare her housemates, and the three, engrossed in their work, sometimes don't speak to each other for hours. Their presentation includes songe and dancing, and Miss Bull is to be featured in cornet solos. They left with the Kellermann company last week.

Miss Bull recently appeared on a short tour over the Pantages circuit, and has been heard in cornet solos at Grauman's Theater.

lutely different from has ever done.

He is still Charlis Chaplin, little hat 'dinky mustache, full draped trousers, enormous shoes, half-size cane, and all, but it is a Charlie Chaplin injected into a production that covers both lights and shades of human life.

The human life.

The human life.

The human comedy and humor arising from the situations which develop legically throughout the six reels of joyous laughter and entertainment which constitute "The Rid."

The one and only Al Jolson, inimitable mangler of melanchely and chief joy-bringer of the nation, is coming back to Los Angeles after an absence of several seasons. He will be seen in the Winter Garden's opulent oriental travesty, "Sinbad," at Philharmonic Auditorium, for a single week, commencing tomorrow evening at $1:10 o'clock.

"Sinbad," which is the twenty-third extravagans to be produced at the Winter Garden, New York, is beyond doubt the greatest success of its kind known to the stage. "Sidbad" is a departure from Winter Garden traditions in that there is no suggestion of the revue in its construction, which is pure extravagants after the form and manner of the English pantomime. It proceeds logically through lavish scenes that take the spectator from the quiet golf links on Long Island to "The Isle of Eternsi Youth" and all manner of unheard-of places.

The narrative follows the ancient story of "Sinbad" in a measure and is the work of Harold Atteridge. Sigmund Romberg and Al Joison contributed the music, and J. C. Huffman, who has staged twenty-two of the twenty-five productions presented at the Winter Garden, is responsible for the staging, under the personal supervision of J. J. Shubert.

Joison impersonates Inbad, the porter, a role that affords him unlimited opportunity for comedy of the unique type in which he leads all others.

The title of the photoplay is the same as that made famous by the author in his tale of the great wolf-dog known as "Kazan the Killen," and the story has to do with a gripping tragedy and a love affair which wander through many nooks and corners of a northern wilderness little anown to man.

The "grip" in this photoplay is said to be the wonderful lesson of faithfulness taught by the dog. "Knann." "Versatility was thrust upon me," whimsically says Miss Clark. "I was trained for grand opera and landed as an instructor in an exclusive school for girls. It was thought that my voice was of grand opera call-ber—but it broke in the training process. I tried dancing in the Russian ballet, only to have my left ankle grow too weak to stand the strain. Then I studied art, but found it tedious. At list, coming to Callfornia I turned to pictures—the moving variety, and there I stuck."

EUGENE O'BRIEN

AT THE HIPPODROME.

A picture of special interest will open a three-day engagement at the Hippodrome today. It is "Broadway and Home." said to be a powerful, pulsating photodrama with wide contrast of scenes and characters and starring Eugene O'Brien. Maleta Bonconi, European virtuoso, accompanied by his own pianist, will present one of the most entertaining musical acts ever seen at the Hippodrome.

Bartlette, Smith and Sherry will offer a triple sillance of harmony and mirth that will drive the gloom to the four winds, and Rainbow and Mohawk, the twentieth century Indians, have something novel in vaudeville acts.

The Jack Martin Trio will appear in sparkling moments from musical shows to be followed by Les Arados, the demon and the clown, European comedy acrobats of fame.

on the road it may be a different story.

"Deception" is said to have been made in a studio near Berlin where "Passion" was also filmed and was directed by the same man—Ernest Lubitsch. To my mind it is a better picture than "Passion." German or no German, it is idle not to recognize it as a picture to compare in quality with the very finest of our own.

Finer screen acting has seldom been seen anywhere than the portrayal of Henry the Eighth by Emil Jennings, who was also the king in "Passion."

been seen anywhere than the portrayal of Henry the Eighth by Emil Jennings, who was also the king in "Passion."

He makes bluff Ming Hal a living reality, a rough, boose-guzzling, riot ous voluptuary, but wilkal a man of power and force. He makes you understand why the English always lawed the Tudors with all their gross faults. You know why they couldn't help but have a sneaking liking for the old wretch who sent his wives to the headsman and got into indecent firtations with the naked nymphs of the chorus.

No king was ever before presented more humanly and forcefully on the stage.

Through it all he makes you realize that Henry the Eighth was a politician—a rough drunken roisterer, but an astute, adroit, courage ous ruler.

He waits to catch the eye of the oll Archbishop of Canterbury to be sure he is on the right track, but he acts with the fearlesaness of a bull-dog when he scorns the Pope's papal buil of excommunication and shows the papal delegate the door.

OCEANS OF EXTRAS.

The great superiority of the direction had put on "Deception" and show the papal delegate he makes you understand that they have done that two and would have come down through an orchard of peach plos-owns with a prop smile and the rew baby gurgling in his arms, or jess large of her coat with the fact would have thrown back the words. Stand back from this gal. "More through in Heaven." If you could alt through the musical program long enough to get to Tom I magine it would be fine. The New York movies have gone crasy over sigh-brow music. Every picture show is an ordeal before you get to form the symphony orchestras until you will be grateful for any kind of picture.
